

LUXURY ENSUITE

Sexy. Chic. Luxurious. That was how the homeowner described this bathroom when he first saw it and we wholeheartedly agree.

A sense of space was a quintessential aspect of this bathroom design as the client wanted it to evoke a feeling of luxury. With a fast-paced career that demanded travel and staying in the most exclusive hotels in the world, the owner wanted a comparable spot he could call his own.

To emulate a luxurious aesthetic, the use of light and carefully curated materials were considered during this project.

According to Ioanna Lennox, creative director and principal designer, the abundance of light and space was key to elevating this room. With the addition of limestone porcelain panels, the bathroom instantly felt peaceful and calming.

Meanwhile, the size and location of the new ensuite allowed for the inclusion of two entries: one as a walk-through from the bedroom, and one from the opposite side directly linking to the walk-in robe. The clever use of the surrounding structures ensured the bathroom remained a hero element in the space as all walkways naturally led to it.

But the luxury aesthetic doesn't end there — in fact, far from it. To light up the room, a large Velux skylight was installed to gently illuminate and highlight the other unique design aspects like the bowl basins and natural marble handles. Ceiling speakers also allowed the homeowner to play music to his heart's content, and the tub was carefully placed to catch glimpses of the sunset.

It's no wonder this bathroom has been recognised by industry professionals as winner of Best Bathroom in the International Design & Architecture Awards 2020, and the winner of KBDi's People Choice Awards for Best Bathroom. As the homeowner so eloquently put it, "Everyone's jaw hits the floor when they enter the master suite. What more could you want?"
